

Leftists' Ideological Behaviour in Patria Case (Part I)

Research concerning individual consciousness is possible by various forms of first-person methodology using phenomenal experience. For its constitution, the leftist ideology uses some very characteristic components of nowadays informational consciousness generating mainly and predominantly a false image of actual political and other happening. So, a corrupted actual meaning is broadcasted, printed, propagated, visualised, made public in the leftist oblique media, implementing deception by the plot against political opponents. This kind of plot occurred in the Patria report by the Finish State TV Service.

The presented retrograph in Fig. 1 shows, for the mentioned Finish case, an authentic, red coloured circularity and perplexedness of entities used as leftist ideology nowadays in Slovenia. It is clearly exposed how and by whom the components are gained. Intentionally, naively or both, the Finish Patria Report felt unexpectedly and precisely into this leftist ideological context.

Referees of this paper are aware that methodology of modern archeology, dealing with human behaviour especially on the level of dominating mind, is not theoretically known neither professionally used in political sciences, studies concerning them, and everyday journalism in Slovenia, Finland and elsewhere. Thus, in many cases, the work of journalists becomes unprofessional and subject to naivety, local interest, and lower situated knowledge. The case of Finish report and the retrograph in Fig. 1 confirm this fact.

Likely, the graph needs additional explanation and interpretation. It is founded on facts being transparent in Slovene political area, how-
